YOGI BEAR "DIG IF YOU MUST"

BONERS, MOANERS, AND GROANERS!

For more than thirty years I have taught those darling little children in the grade schools. It has been necessary for me to give them examinations on what they should have studied and should have learned. Sometimes the examination is written. Other times it is oral. I also have to ask them questions about what they are doing. One thing is certain: If teacher is not clear in pronouncing the word or doesn't make the meaning of a thought clear, those kids will give you an unusual answer. The kids always enjoyed trying to catch teacher with a riddle or puzzle. Or find something that the teacher doesn't know. And how happy a boy or girl is when this has been accomplished.

Donald raised his hand. I told him to stand up and speak. And this is the question he asked of me:

"Teacher, what does the word kerf mean?"

I no longer was an amateur in teaching. I knew some of the tricks the kids would try to pull in class. Go home and take the dictionary. Then find a strange word. Ask teacher what it meant. If teacher didn't know what it meant the kid had shown him or her up. I was ready for this trick.

Before I tell you what that word means, I want to be sure about one thing. That you will tell the class you do not know the meaning of the word. That you will accept what I tell you and never bring it up again."

One look at Donald's face and you could see that I had caught him. He had to go through with it as all the kids were looking at him.

"Whatever you say teacher, I will accept it from you," he replied after waiting about two minutes before talking.

"You can't put a kerf in a kepi," I told him. "And when you go home, you can check on me."

When I left the classroom at three, I headed for the library and the big dictionary they had there. I had never heard of the word kerf before. What was it? The dictionary said: A cut or incision made by a saw or the like in a piece of wood. Since a kepi was a French military cap with a flat circular top and a nearly horizontal visor and not made out of wood-I was correct.

The next day when Donald came to school, he spoke to me in a very polite tone of voice.

"See, you know a lot. My father says what you told me is correct."

In the morning session and in the afternoon session we had 20 minutes set aside for "Free

Time." The students could decide what they wanted to do. They had a game they called, "Crazy Questions." And they enjoyed it very much.

"Did you ever see a horse fly? or a match box? Or a peanut stand?" Robert asked his fellow students.

"You can have a horse fly," grinned Elsie. "If you put a horse in an airplane and take it from one city to another, then you can say if you were in the same plane that you saw a horse fly."

"If two matches got mad at each other and decide to fight and if you watched them, then you could say you saw a match box," said Michael with a big grin on his face.

"If you got a peanut that was flat on the bottom then you could stand it on a table. And then you could say you saw a peanut stand," suggested Martha.

"Will somebody tell me what is meant by saying Time Flies? And has anybody here ever seen Time Fly?" continued Donald.

"If you could put wings on a clock or on a calendar, then maybe you could say you saw Time Fly," offered Peter.

"If you had a country called Time and there were flies in that country, then I think you could call them Time Flies because that is where they come from," said Alice.

"What is it that hangs on a wall, is blue, and wet?" asked Donald.

Not a single student in the class and even teacher could figure that one out. So they "gave up" and Donald told us:

"A codfish." That was all and we were certainly all puzzled.

"But a codfish swims in water, it doesn't hang on a wall," protested Jimmy who didn't like the idea of not knowing the answer.

"So hang it on the wall," said Donald with energy in his voice.

"But a codfish isn't at all blue," pointed out Theresa.

"So you paint it blue," was the retort of Donald.

"But if you have all that, how do you figure it is wet? It isn't in the water," said Thomas.

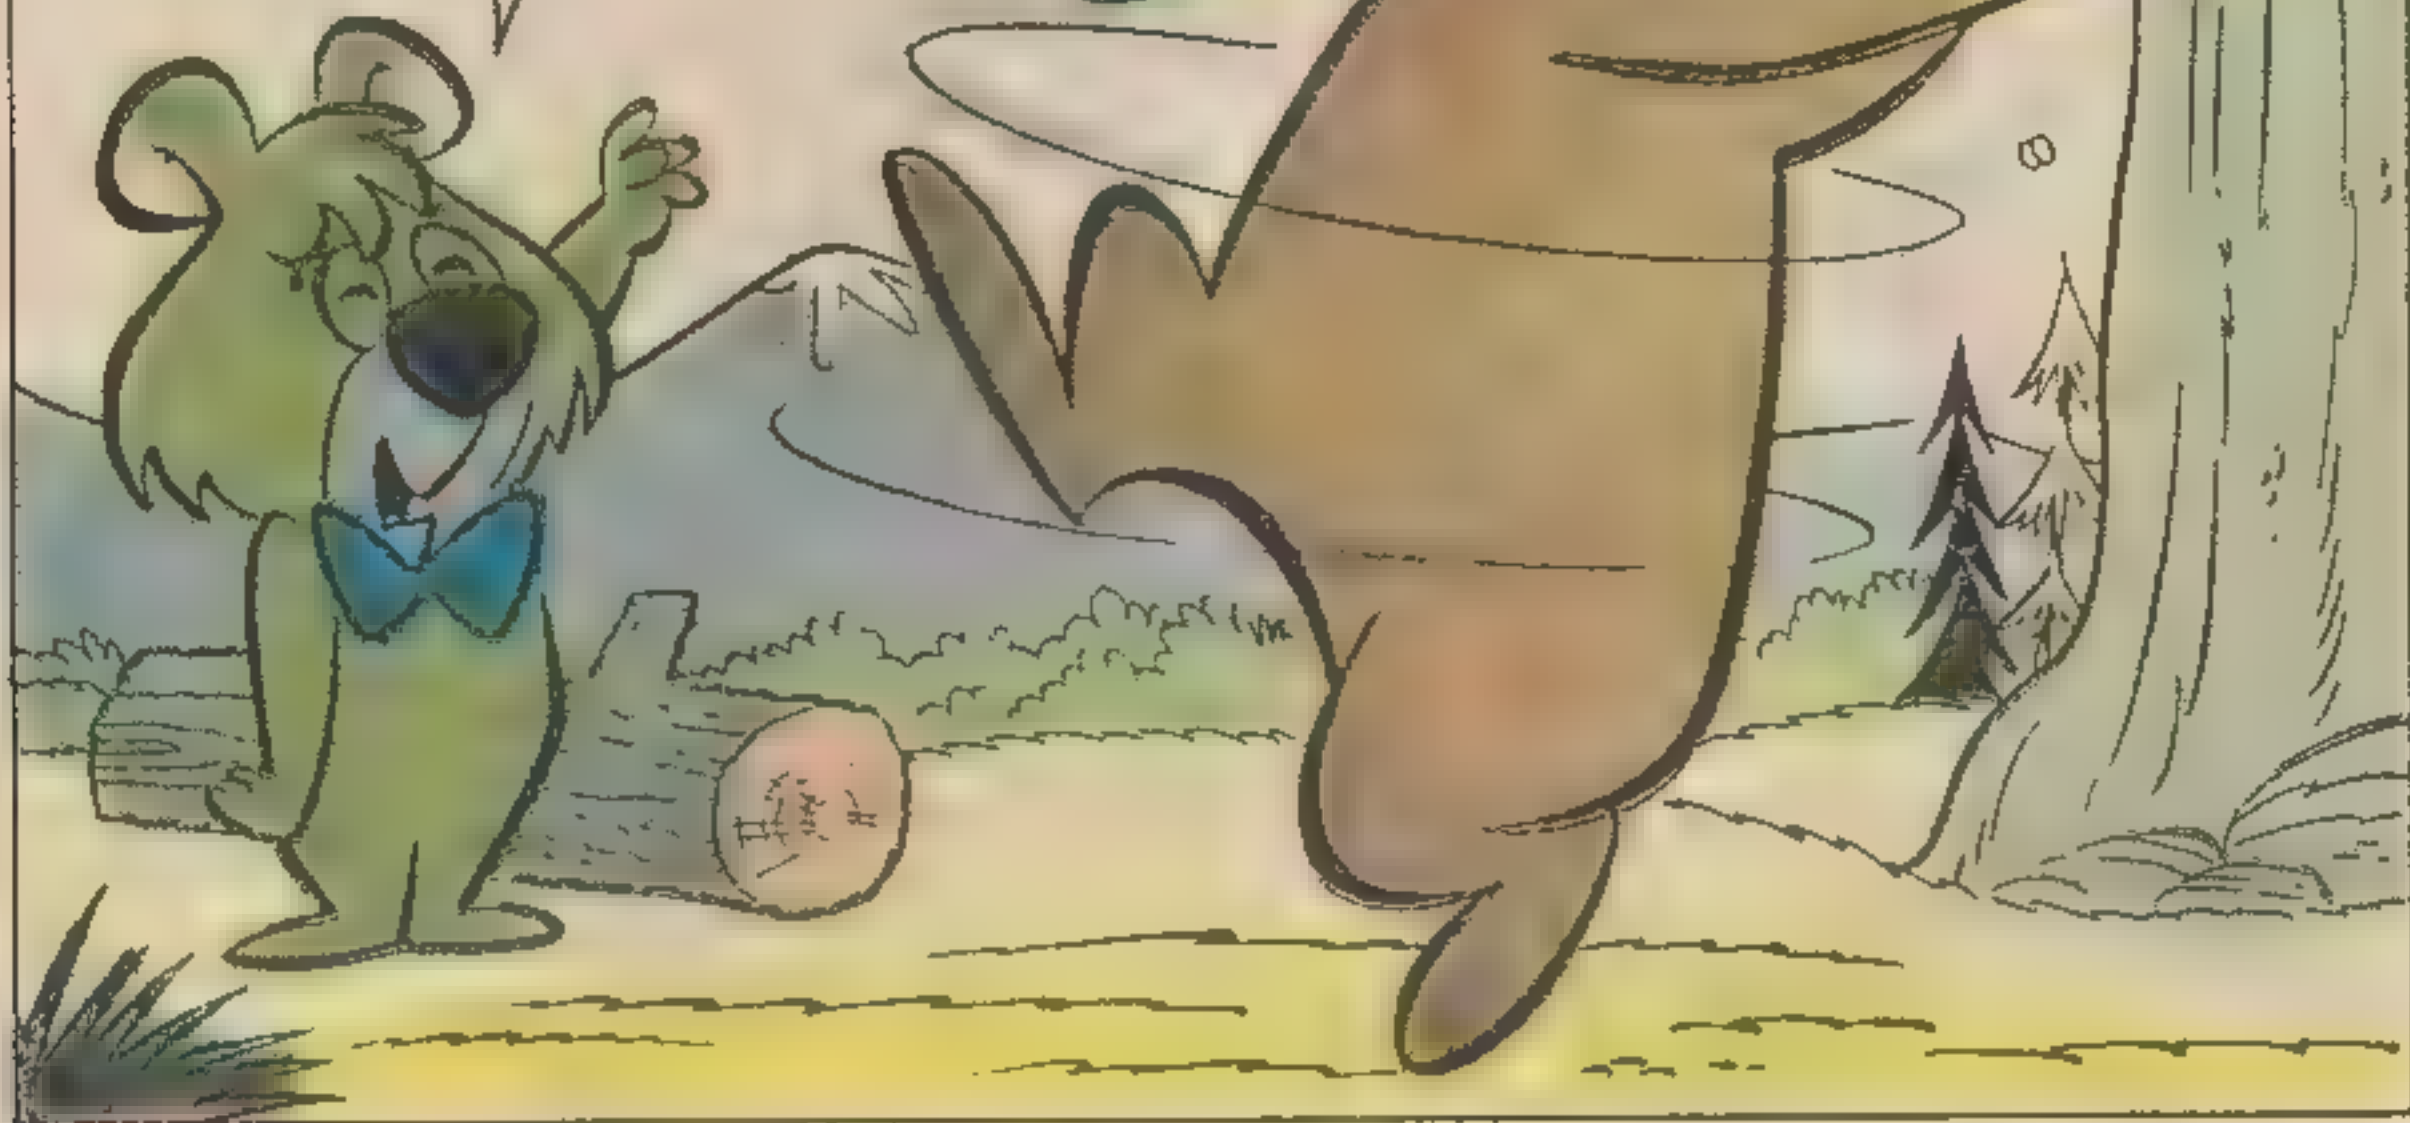

"So you take some water and spill it on the fish," was the reply.

There you have it. Until our next meeting and I'll tell you more.
